SCHOOL REPORT.

In accordance with the belief that it was for the best good of all concerned, we have as far as possible, during the past year, secured teachers who were residents of the town, and who seemed fitted by reason of their education, tact, discipline and knowledge of conditions connected with their several schools to do more proficient and satisfactory work than teachers from other places not having their natural advantages to begin with. The progress made and the success of the schools in general has we believe been fully commensurate with the means at hand and the inducements offered.

That there is need of a closer relationship between parents and teachers is beyond question. The interest for the child's good should never be wholly intrusted to a teacher until the parent first makes known to her something concerning its peculiar qualities of disposition, adaptation for study, and suggestions as to its natural trend of mind. To shape a child's character for good is one of the noblest works of mankind and the parent who through neglect or indifference or by positive acts depends upon hearsay evidence for the welfare as to school life of his child has but small ground for criticism of proper school management. Without doubt there are imperfections in all schools, but after efficient and directed efforts have been employed to secure the best teachers that for the wages offered could be conveniently had the mutual obligation then devolves upon the School Board, teachers, parents and pupils to carry forward the necessary school work. "No town can expect to prosper if the education of its people is neglected." We have been pleased with the general advancement in studies and the good feeling between teachers and pupils, in almost every case resulting incidentally in the following list of pupils who have not been absent one or more terms.
